The George Gund Foundation

was established in 1952 as a private, nonprofit institution with the sole purpose of contributing to human well-being and the progress of society. Over the years, program objectives and emphases have been modified to meet the changing opportunities and problems of our society, but the Foundation's basic goal of advancing human welfare remains constant.

President's Letter

Those of us who have the privilege to engage in philanthropic work are able to take a fairly uncommon perspective: the long-range view. We are able to cast our gaze into an imagined future and urge ourselves and others to move in that direction by thoughtful use of our grants and our relationships. This certainly has been the case with the Foundation's increasingly important work in economic development. In particular, the Foundation looks back with pride in the role we played during the past year in launching the Fund for Our Economic Future, a promising collaboration of grantmakers that is prodding Northeast Ohio to envision and embrace economic change.

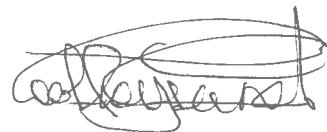

One stream of Fund for Our Economic Future activity is making grants to non-profits that can catalyze economic growth. The initial grantees have been young organizations: BioEnterprise, JumpStart, NorTech and Team NEO. The first two of these promote and support entrepreneurship, a spirit currently in short supply in this region. NorTech advances technology-based growth. Team NEO focuses on business retention and attraction. Reports on their early work are encouraging. But organizations such as these, no matter how successful they may prove to be, cannot transform the region's economy by themselves. There are still too many fundamental impediments to Greater Cleveland's revival. These include:

- Staggeringly fragmented regional services and governments;
- Public education systems plagued by inequitable funding mechanisms; and
- Suburban sprawl that destroys green fields, pollutes the air and waterways, adds pointless millions to the region's tax bill and isolates the disadvantaged.

It is difficult to envision how to reach across the many barriers separating people and sectors in Northeast Ohio in order to begin to address such complex issues. But, in fact, the Fund for Our Economic Future has done just that. It has launched an unprecedented, wide-ranging process of public engagement called Voices & Choices. This initiative aims to create a shared vision and action agenda for Northeast Ohio by the end of 2006. These are clearly needed to accelerate the promising work of organizations like those noted above and the encouraging growth of the companies they assist. Most vitally, this process will say much about the spirit of Northeast Ohio and its willingness to embrace an economic future that may bear little resemblance to the past.

Changes within the Foundation also are worthy of note this year. Robert Storey, a trustee since 1996, retired at the end of 2004. In our Board deliberations and other gatherings Bob always could be relied upon for deep wisdom, good counsel and warm humor. His long experience as a lawyer and his knowledge of the Cleveland community were valuable to the Foundation. Bob brightened our work in countless ways, and we will miss him greatly. On the staff, Ann K. Mullin joined us in February 2005 as senior program officer for education after several years at the Cleveland Foundation. She assumed the duties of Jeffrey Glebocki, who departed after nearly eight years to pursue a long-held desire to live in the West. We appreciate the fine work that Jeff did, and we welcome Ann to the ongoing examination of the central role that education plays in making Cleveland, its region and our nation more successful.

Executive Director's Letter

The photographic essay in this annual report depicts Cleveland's Ohio City neighborhood through the singular lens of Thomas Roma. Ohio City is one of the city's most diverse places, and it exuberantly bursts with sights and flavors. It challenges any effort to embrace it within one set of photos

We commissioned Roma's essay because Ohio City represents so many of the Foundation's interests and concerns. Over many years the Foundation has supported scores of organizations, in every one of our program areas, located there. The organizations and their work are themselves worthy of our support, but their presence in a single place suggests the greater importance of Ohio City.

It is a place of history. Once a separate municipality, Ohio City is one of Cleveland's most interesting neighborhoods because its dense Victorian housing and narrow streets evoke an era when Cleveland's economic brawn was virtually unmatched.

It is a place overflowing with social concern. Few neighborhoods are home to so many nonprofit organizations devoted to improving the lives of others. Human services, community development, the environment, arts, education—all of these have their advocates in Ohio City, serving the full diversity of people who live in the neighborhood and beyond.

It is a neighborhood that attracts new urbanists. The devastation of suburban sprawl has taken as severe a toll on Ohio City as other city districts, but three decades ago Ohio City also saw the first stirrings of reinvestment. That trend continues, with all of the complexity and the hope that accompany it.

Each of these characteristics makes Ohio City important—not merely to its residents, but also to the city as a whole and, indeed, to the larger region. Understanding that importance is especially vital to the expanding appreciation of regionalism. Ohio City's features—its density, diversity, historic character, proximity to downtown—make it an appealing home for people who have the ability to live anywhere. Many of those people are the entrepreneurs, the knowledge economy workers, the innovators who will drive much of our region's standing in the global marketplace. Northeast Ohio must pay special attention to its places that appeal to such people. The best of those places are authentic urban neighborhoods. Bland sprawl does not attract the inventive people we require; indeed, it repels them.

Special urban spaces—and there are many—need to be nurtured for the sake of the region's economic competitiveness. This means that the entire region has a stake in the success of neighborhoods like Ohio City. But our deeply fragmented political and governmental structures in Northeast Ohio nearly bar us from seeing that, let alone committing regional resources to it. Doing so in a way that does not exclude long-time residents and those with fewer choices than the new economy's workers is one of the real challenges of life in a vibrant urban setting. Yet, this too is as much a regional issue as it is a neighborhood concern. The demands of equity and justice cannot be confined to a single neighborhood. The very reasons why so many disadvantaged people reside in the central city are regional—suburban sprawl across a welter of political jurisdictions, exclusionary zoning, the near total absence of meaningful regional planning and so forth. Ways must be found to discuss and address these issues on a regional basis for the sake of the city, of the region, of us all.

Ohio City is just one of the extraordinary locations in this region's urban centers that merit renewed attention and investment. They embody much of our worthwhile past, and, if we take a closer look, we will realize that they also can be a key to our future.

Thomas Roma has given us a fascinating glimpse into life in Ohio City, one of Cleveland's most diverse, dynamic urban places. The neighborhood, home to some of the area's early settlers and evocative of an age of economic prowess, is significant in Cleveland's past. It also is important to our present as home to many nonprofit organizations funded by the Foundation. Ohio City also represents the future we want for our community—a vibrant urban neighborhood that is attractive to many types of people, including workers in the new knowledge-based economy.

Roma, a two-time winner of the prestigious John Simon Guggenheim Fellowship, is director of the photography program at the Columbia University School of the Arts and a founding contributing photographer of DoubleTake magazine. His work has appeared in one-person and group exhibitions internationally and is in the collections of numerous museums.

Human Services

The Foundation participated in innovative community collaborations focused on important human services issues. Support for Adopt Cuyahoga's Kids helped launch a significant public/private partnership to find "forever families" for hundreds of the hardest-to-place children in our public child welfare system, and the opening of the Health Policy Institute of Ohio marked a collaboration of eight health grantmakers working to improve health policy on issues impacting low-income Ohioans. The Foundation also made a $1 million investment in Cuyahoga County's signature effort to improve early childhood development, Invest in Children. Human services grantmaking totaled $5,504,830.

Grant Program Guidelines

The George Gund Foundation's long-standing interests in the arts, economic development and community revitalization, education, the environment and human services are reflected in the guidelines below. Uniting them and coursing through the history of the Foundation is a deep commitment to place, to the Greater Cleveland community that is the home of the Foundation. The Foundation's philanthropic stewardship of this region derives from its roots, from our belief that Cleveland can continue to develop original solutions to urban problems and from our hope that collaborations across boundaries can create a crucible of innovation in all fields of endeavor. Moreover, the urban emphasis of our work stems from our belief that thriving cities are the nation's best hope for addressing our essential problems. This sense of stewardship increasingly causes the Foundation to acknowledge that many grant proposals do not fit neatly into one program area. Indeed, the work of many nonprofit organizations brings together aspects of several of our core concerns.

Recognition of these interrelationships draws the Foundation toward support of funding opportunities that cross program boundaries and that integrate elements of these various disciplines. Program areas remain points of focused attention, but we expect to be ever more interdisciplinary in our approach. This will be particularly evident with regard to initiatives that aim to make urban areas, in particular Cleveland, globally competitive and increasingly livable because it is in this domain that the greatest need and opportunity converge with the Foundation's primary interests and ongoing stewardship.

Although our focus is centered in Greater Cleveland, a portion of the Foundation's grantmaking will continue to support state and national policymaking that bolsters our work.

Education

Education is fundamental to success, and the Foundation is especially conscious of the vital role of the Cleveland Municipal School District in any successful strategy to advance this region's prospects. Consequently, the Foundation's concern for improving primary and secondary education is focused on that school district and, to a lesser degree, on public schools in the first-ring suburbs. Our emphasis is on systemic school improvements, particularly in the areas of management and teacher quality, academic programs that address the needs of disadvantaged children and efforts to better connect schools with their communities.

Colleges and universities are playing an ever larger role in the economic and community life of their regions, and the Foundation supports efforts of public and private universities in Greater Cleveland to forge these innovative ventures. An additional area of interest is increasing access to higher education for disadvantaged students.

Some support is provided to organizations that work to advance educational equity and excellence through state and national policy and to build and strengthen support for public education.

Economic Development & Community Revitalization

Sustaining uniquely urban assets such as vibrant neighborhoods and a thriving downtown is a key part of a successful regional strategy to promote economic growth. The Foundation devotes considerable attention to these dynamics, in particular by supporting collaborative efforts that leverage resources. Specific physical development proposals in Cleveland neighborhoods are usually not considered directly but are referred to Neighborhood Progress, Inc., a local intermediary supported by the Foundation. Likewise, specific proposals for economic development initiatives are referred to the Fund for Our Economic Future, a collaboration of many philanthropic organizations in the region.

Highest priority is given to initiatives that bolster the impact of Foundation-supported intermediary organizations working to improve the competitiveness of Cleveland and its metropolitan region. Examples of such initiatives include quality urban planning and design efforts, improvements to urban parks and other public spaces and promotion of equal opportunity and diversity in housing and the workplace. Also receiving serious consideration are proposals that significantly leverage other resources for redevelopment of Cleveland's downtown, neighborhoods and its first-ring suburbs. Proposals of national or statewide significance are considered, but they must demonstrate a substantial contribution toward the Foundation's locally oriented economic development and community revitalization objectives.

Arts

The Foundation values and supports the role the arts play in making Cleveland and its region a more desirable place to live, fostering the growth of a creative workforce, catalyzing development in our neighborhoods and serving as a bridge between various segments of the community. The Foundation encourages a lively, diverse arts community in Greater Cleveland by funding local projects that emphasize artistic quality, innovative programming, reaching new audiences and organizational development. We also try to balance support for Cleveland's long-standing institutions with funding for newer organizations that promise to reach different audiences and cultures and to expand the city's artistic offerings. Arts education continues to be a high priority, with a focus on curriculum-related partnerships between arts organizations and the Cleveland Municipal School District. In addition, the Foundation seeks to advance the region's understanding of the importance of the arts by supporting The Community Partnership for Arts and Culture.

Human Services

The Foundation believes that heightened focus on developing a more globally competitive city and region demands direct concurrent attention to the needs of those most at risk of being left out of social and economic transformation. We recognize this by helping to meet immediate human needs in Greater Cleveland and, especially, by supporting organizations working to alleviate those needs through policy changes locally, in the state of Ohio and at the national level. Areas of particular interest are tax and fiscal policy analysis and building the analytical and advocacy capacity of nonprofit organizations.

As a means of investing in the future, the Foundation pays special attention to the needs of disadvantaged children through grants to support early childhood care and education, abuse prevention, improved foster care and adoption systems and assessment of the impact of welfare reform. In addition, the Foundation provides some support for the local "safety net" of food, clothing, shelter and access to health care. A closely related set of interests is reflected in the Foundation's desire to help vulnerable populations achieve access to health insurance, to the legal system, to community support following release from prison and to safe and affordable reproductive health services.

Environment

Human well-being is inextricably linked to the quality of the environment, and urban areas bring this fact into sharp focus as historic disregard for the environment and modern development pressures create great challenges. The Foundation responds by making grants to organizations that work to address environmental issues in Northeast Ohio. In addition, we have an interest in the environment of the state as a whole and in the Lake Erie and Ohio River ecosystems. The Foundation focuses on six substantive areas: Smart Growth and Livable Communities, which promotes alternatives to urban sprawl; Green Buildings, Sustainable Business and Energy, which seeks to advance approaches to reduced energy consumption and waste; Conservation of Natural Systems and Biodiversity, which focuses on conserving intact, high-quality ecosystems and threatened biodiversity; Protection of Human Health, which supports organizations that work to reduce environmental health threats; Journalist Training, which provides support for media to increase public awareness of environmental issues; and Leadership Development, which seeks to enhance skills of nonprofit environmental organization leaders.

Within these areas, a wide range of proposals will be considered for Northeast Ohio. Statewide emphasis is on policy issues and organizations that assist grassroots groups. Limited support is provided to organizations that work at the national level on federal policies and programs that affect Ohio.

The Foundation normally does not consider grants for endowments or capital needs, including renovation, equipment or construction, except in special circumstances or when part of a larger project. Grants are not made for debt reduction or to fund benefit events. Funding for conferences, publications and media is limited to projects directly related to priorities in the Foundation's five program areas.

The Foundation does not make grants to individuals, nor does it administer programs it supports. Grants are limited to organizations located in the United States.

The Foundation makes grants only to organizations that meet Internal Revenue Code requirements as nonprofit, tax-exempt organizations and to qualified government units and agencies. Grant funds may not be used to participate or intervene in any political campaign on behalf of or in opposition to any candidate for public office.

Notes to Financial Statements

December 31, 2004 and 2003

NOTE I: SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Nature of operations The George Gund Foundation (“the Foundation”) is a private foundation which makes grants to educational, community service and philanthropic organizations, basically in Greater Cleveland.

Basis of accounting The Foundation’s financial statements are presented on the accrual basis of accounting. Accordingly, revenues are recorded when earned, and expenses are recognized when incurred. The Foundation has only unrestricted net assets.

Use of estimates The preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Cash and cash equivalents Cash and cash equivalents consist of highly-liquid investments with maturity dates of three months or less which are readily convertible into cash.

Investments Marketable and U.S. securities are reported at their market value. Securities traded on a national securities exchange are valued at the last reported trading price on the last business day of the year. Realized gains or losses are determined by comparison of asset cost to net proceeds received. Unrealized gains or losses are determined by comparison of asset cost to market values at the end of the year. Presenting the fair value of program-related investments is impractical since the purpose of these investments is to provide low interest loans to nonprofit organizations to assist them in their specific projects.

Condensed Financial Statements

Furniture, equipment and leasehold improvements Furniture, equipment and leasehold improvements are stated at cost. Amortization and depreciation is recorded using both straight-line and accelerated methods over the estimated useful lives of the assets. Depreciation expense amounted to $70,157 and $65,973 for the years ended December 31, 2004 and 2003, respectively.

NOTE 2: LEASES

The Foundation occupies office space in the Landmark Office Towers under a lease that extends to January 31, 2010. Base annual rentals are $123,833 through February 1, 2005 and $129,461 for the remaining term of the lease, with escalation charges from these base rentals. There are renewal options for two additional periods of five years each. Rental expense for the years ended December 31, 2004 and 2003 amounted to $132,559 and $130,752, respectively.

The future minimum lease commitments under leases with terms in excess of one year are as follows:

2005	$ 128,992
2006	129,461
2007	129,461
2008	129,461
2009	129,461
Thereafter	10,789
	$ 657,625

NOTE 3: EMPLOYEE BENEFIT PLAN

The Foundation has an employee's tax-sheltered annuity plan for substantially all employees. Employer contributions are required at 9% of participants' compensation up to the Social Security wage base and 14.7% of the participant's compensation in excess of this wage base, with a limit of $205,000 of compensation. Contributions to the plan for the years ended December 31, 2004 and 2003 amounted to $94,301 and $91,936, respectively.

NOTE 4: CREDIT CONCENTRATION

Aside from their holdings in the Kellogg Co., the Foundation's portfolio of investments is highly diversified; however, at December 31, 2004 and 2003, 28% and 30%, respectively, of the total market value of securities and 50% and 56%, respectively, of dividend income in each year are attributable to ownership of Kellogg Co. stock. The Foundation has a concentration of risk in its cash position as of December 31, 2004 in that the Foundation has approximately $6,800,000 in one checking account that is insured by the FD.I.C. up to a limit of $100,000.

NOTE 5: EXCISE TAXES

The Foundation is exempt from federal income taxes and is classified as a private foundation under Section 501 of the Internal Revenue code (IRC). It is subject to a 2% (1% if certain criteria are met) federal excise tax on net investment income, including realized gains, as defined by the IRC.

Deferred federal excise taxes are provided on the unrealized appreciation or depreciation of investments and interest and dividend income and certain expenses being reported for financial statement purposes in different periods than for tax purposes.

Accordingly, federal excise taxes of $489,046 and $92,982 have been provided for the years ended December 31, 2004 and 2003, respectively, in the income fund. Included in the above amounts are $2,889 and $3,514 reflecting the net change in deferred taxes for the years ending December 31, 2004 and 2003, respectively. The principal fund excise tax is the result of the deferred tax at a rate of 2% and 1% on the unrealized gains on securities for the years 2004 and 2003, respectively.

NOTE 6: NET ASSETS

Net assets include the accounts of two board-designated funds (principal and income) both of which consist entirely of unrestricted net assets. The principal fund consists of investments in securities and receives the realized and unrealized gains or losses on those assets. The income fund receives interest and dividends on the principal fund investments which are used for grants and administrative expenses. At December 31, the statements of financial position included the following income fund accounts:

	2004	2003
Cash	$ 478,111	$ 1,591,722
Receivables	1,026,727	1,692,294
Other assets	18,622	16,309
Due from (to) principal fund	58,057	(17,335)
Accounts payable	(374,684)	(446,267)
Grants payable	(12,581,710)	(5,585,800)
Deferred federal excise tax	(4,215)	(7,104)
	$ (11,379,092)	$ (2,756,181)

The following is a summary of the changes in total net assets:

	2004	2003
Income fund	$ (8,622,911)	$ 259,483
Principal fund	36,202,927	51,544,991
Increase in net assets	27,580,016	51,804,474
Net assets – beginning	442,463,090	390,658,616
Net assets – ending	$ 470,043,106	$ 442,463,090

The change in individual funds includes transfers by the Foundation of $13,439,421 in 2004 and $11,813,670 in 2003 from the principal fund to the income fund.

Independent Auditors' Report

TO THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES, THE GEORGE GUND FOUNDATION

We have audited the accompanying statements of financial position of The George Gund Foundation as of December 31, 2004 and 2003, and the related statements of activities and cash flows for the years then ended. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Foundation's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audits.

We conducted our audits in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audits to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of The George Gund Foundation at December 31, 2004 and 2003, and the results of its activities and its cash flows for the years then ended, in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

George Gund

George Gund was born in La Crosse, Wisconsin, and his family settled in Cleveland in 1897. Following graduation from Harvard College (1909) and graduate study at Harvard Business School, his early career included banking and real estate in Seattle, serving in Army intelligence during World War I, developing the Kaffee-Hag Corporation in Cleveland, attending Animal Husbandry School at Iowa State University and ranching in Nevada.

In 1936, Mr. Gund married Jessica Roesler and settled down in Cleveland to raise a family. His interest in banking culminated in his becoming President of The Cleveland Trust Company in 1941. At his death in 1966, he was Chairman of the Board.

In 1937, Mr. Gund began a formal program of charitable giving, and his philanthropic concern extended throughout his life. He carefully selected those charities to which he committed his funds. If the commitment was considerable over a long period of time, he characteristically devoted much of his time and energy to the institution.

Strong relationships developed with the educational institutions that shaped Mr.

Gund's early life. He contributed time and money to University School (Cleveland), where he was a trustee, and to Iowa State University, where he established a scholarship program for students of animal husbandry. He served on the Board of Overseers of Harvard College from 1954 to 1960 and was closely involved at Harvard with the School of Public Health and the Business School from 1954 to 1966. Another interest in higher education was Kenyon College, where he served as a trustee for many years.

Although Mr. Gund had little personal experience in the arts, his devotion to them was great. Perhaps the single best example was his long association with the Cleveland Institute of Art. In 1942, he became President of the Institute and, under his leadership, saw it develop into a lively and prestigious institution.

The George Gund Foundation was created in 1952 because Mr. Gund believed the private foundation concept provided the most positive, farsighted vehicle for intelligent underwriting of creative solutions to social ills in a manner which would not be limited to his own lifetime. He favored the corporate foundation structure directed by an experienced, sensitive board of trustees entrusted not only with disbursement of funds, but an objective, practical review of proposals. He valued the degree of freedom a private foundation can exercise in seeking and fostering innovative ideas and in implementing demonstration projects.

Today, Mr. Gund's vision is carried forth through the continued involvement of the Gund family in the Foundation's work. Since its inception, the Foundation has made grants totaling more than $437 million toward the advancement of human welfare.
